With the corps of efficient instructors above mentioned, and the moral support of the patrons of the school, success is assured. It is to be hoped that parents will have sufficient interest in the education of their children to see that they are punctual in attendance and obedient to all reasonable demands of the teachers, for without the support of parents and trustees of the Drafts Sold Upon school it is uphill work for a teacher. notwithstanding his or her efforts to please, to make the school an entire success.
